

Wilf Voss Biography

Wilf Voss is a professional event manager and master of ceremonies with over twenty years experience. He is a skilled professional who is as comfortable hosting a major conference as he is delivering an after dinner speech or hosting a charity event!

He delights audiences with his wit and charm and is able to maintain pace and interest during an event ensuring that it is delivered professionally and effectively.

Wilf runs his own company – Event-A-Tainment which specialises in event management, show hosting and consultancy.

He is a published author having written both a novel and a book on business communications – 'Getting Your Message Across'. As a trainer he develops and coaches individuals and business professionals to ensure that they have the very best tools to deliver highly effective presentations.

He is a skilled presenter and interviewer with experience with most of the major radio stations in the UK. He has given both live and pre-recorded interviews. Wilf can support a client's media campaigns with consultancy and by acting as a professional spokesperson.

Wilf lives in Wootton Bassett with his wife Jane, his son Sam and his dog Stewie. In what little spare time he has he enjoys walking in the nearby countryside and working with local charities.
